CONDITIONS OF COVERAGE

You have specific duties that must be performed by YOU before WE will be liable for payment of claims under the terms of this Contract. They include:

VEHICLE MAINTENANCE:

- A. You MUST follow the instructions contained within Your Vehicle owner's manual regarding proper operation and all maintenance services scheduled and/or recommended by Your Vehicle's manufacturer. Your Vehicle manufacturer's mileage recommendations will be considered the maximum allowable interval between service requirements.
- B. You MUST retain Maintenance Records, as defined herein. If You perform maintenance on the Vehicle Yourself, You must maintain a log showing the date, mileage and type of maintenance service performed. You must also keep receipts for the purchase of the products used to perform the maintenance service (e.g., lubricants and filters).

C. In the event of a Mechanical Breakdown, You may be requested to provide all Maintenance Records proving that proper maintenance has been performed before a Mechanical Breakdown for certain components will be covered under this Contract, regardless of where or by whom maintenance is performed.

D. CAUTION: Failure to provide all requested Maintenance Records may cause denial of benefits under this Contract. A Routine Maintenance and Repair Log is provided to assist You in recording the maintenance services performed on Your Vehicle, regardless of where or by whom the maintenance is performed.

Refer to Your Vehicle manufacturer owner's manual for all recommended maintenance services. If You do not have a Vehicle owner's manual, You may either purchase one from a franchise dealer or You may contact Us and We will provide information to You regarding recommended maintenance service information, when it is available. Refer to the Contract of the conditions of coverage, exclusions and your duties the term of the Contract.
